Weather To Be Generally Fair

Trout Season Opens

MONROE County fishermen should have plenty of activity today during the opening of the 1961 trout season.

James F. Hazen, district fish warden, said yesterday "fishing conditions should be excellent." He reported that many of the streams were below normal the past week but the heavy snow and rain on Wednesday has helped alleviate that condition.

"The streams are slightly above normal and fishing should be excellent," he said.

Along with the stream condition, Hazen said that the 40,000 trout stocking program has been completed. The latest distributions were made at Bushkill Creek near Resica Falls with 2,400 brown and rainbow trout; at McMichael's Creek with 300 brown and rainbow and at Snow Hill Lake where 500 rainbow trout were placed.

Biggest Season
A total of 114 miles of streams and 13 acres of lake trout waters were covered in the county. The Pennsylvania Fish Commission said this season was the biggest stocking program ever.

Following is a list of the areas which have been stocked:
Aquashicola creek, brookies, Saylorburg along Rt. 115, ten miles; Brodheads creek, brown and rainbow, from Stroudsburg along Rt. 611, 13.5 miles; Middle Branch of the Brodheads, brookies, Canadensis along Rt. 290, two and one-half miles; Bucktown creek, brookies, Kunkletown along Rt. 904, eight miles.

Other Areas

Bushkill creek, brown trout, Resica Falls along Rt. 402, 12 miles; Deep Lake, brookies, Tannersville along Rt. 611, ten acres; Devil's Hole creek, brookies, from Paradise Valley along Rt. 90, three miles; Dotter's creek, brookies, Kresgeville along Rt. 209, five and one-half miles; Goose Pond run, brookies, near Canadensis along Rt. 290, one and eight-tenth miles.

Small, 60-year-old Hotel Reeder with prairie fire speed Thursday night, taking a toll of four lives and 24 injured.

It was a tranquil scene at 8 p. m. Several persons lounged in the small ground floor tavern and lobby of the 22-room hotel. Then someone suddenly noticed tongues of flame in a hallway at the rear of the tavern.

Lester Everetts of Chambersburg, bounded from his seat at the bar and raced upstairs, kicking and pounding on guestroom doors as he passed, yelling "Fire" and "everybody out." He went on to the third floor.

"Without him," said the fireman, "there might have been greater loss of life."

As it was, several guests were rescued with aerial ladders by the volunteer fire crews which waged a two-hour battle against the intense blaze.

Three bodies were found in hallways of the three-story structure where they apparently had been trapped.

They were identified by Coroner John Manes as: Robert Stine, 84, retired and a veteran of the Spanish-American war, and Clark Staley, 55, unemployed, and Clarence Snively, 61, a gardener at Wilson College, a girls' school in Chambersburg.

W. Wilson Beard, 48, an off-duty fireman who was in the tavern at the time, suffered severe burns and was cut by exploding glass. He died about 4 a. m. Friday in Chambersburg hospital.

Lake creek, brookies, Saylorburg along Rt. 115, two and one-half miles; McMichael's creek, brown and rainbow, from Stroudsburg along Rt. 611, nine miles; Middle creek, brookies, from Kresgeville along Rt. 209, five miles; Pensyl creek, brookies, Stroudsburg along Rt. 611, five miles.

Pocono creek, brookies, north of Stroudsburg along Rt. 611, ten miles; Pohopoco or Big Creek, brownies, west of Kresgeville along Rt. 209, ten and three quarters miles; Princess creek, brookies, at Kunkletown along Rt. 904, six miles.

Scotrun, brookies, from Scotrun along Rt. 611, ten and one-half miles; Snow Hill dam, rainbow, from Canadensis along Rt. 209, three acres; and Tobyhanna creek, brown and rainbow, from Tobyhanna along Rt. 611, seven miles.

One other stocking program will be made in May and June when 20,000 more trout will be distributed along with some catfish.

Nearly a million and a half brook, brown and rainbow trout have been stocked in streams by the state fish commission.

Another half million trout will be stocked by late June.

The mid-April snowfall was expected to make the waters of most streams high and dirty for opening day fishing.

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicted that weather would be generally fair with temperatures in the middle and upper 30s at 5 a.m. Temperatures are expected to warm up during the day.

The rules are the same as last year. The minimum length is six inches and the creel limit is eight per day.

When Gagarin flew in from the interior, 20-gun salutes boomed out in Moscow and throughout the nation.

Most of Moscow's seven million population seemed to turn out in a city red with the banners and flags of the Soviet Union and plastered with pictures of the astronaut.

At Red Square, Khrushchev declared: "The space flight must not detract the attention of the Soviet people from other targets, and these include catching up with the United States in the standard of living."

The area around the airport was jammed as the airliner roared in, bringing Gagarin from a secret air base where he has been waiting since he rocketed into world fame with the announcement Wednesday of his historic flight. Seven Soviet jet fighters flew escort.

Khrushchev had arrived a short time before from a Black Sea vacation spot. The entire diplomatic corps, including U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson, was out.

Wife Waiting
Gagarin's wife, Valentina, was waiting. The astronaut's father, Aleksey Gagarin, and his mother had come from their home near Smolensk.

Unsmiling, Gagarin came down the ramp alone, walked up to Khrushchev and saluted.

Public Hearings Monday

Senate Unit Rules Out Closed Price-Fix Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican senators lost a move Friday to block a public investigation of price-fixing charges in the electrical manufacturing industry.

The motion to conduct the inquiry behind closed doors lost on a 4-4 tie vote of the Senate antitrust subcommittee.

The vote was taken in executive session after two days of wrangling. One Democrat, Sen. William A. Blakley of Texas, was reported to have joined the three Republicans on the losing side.

Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., subcommittee chairman, said the inquiry will get under way at an open session Monday. The question of closed vs. public hearings was resolved after a dispute over whether the subcommittee could meet while the Senate was in session.

Sen. Alexander Wiley, R-Wis., accused Kefauver of being a publicity seeker.

Kefauver told Wiley it was unbecoming of him to make such a statement.

"You know it's not true," Kefauver said.

Wiley argued it would not be fair to conduct now what he called a three-ring circus inquiry into issues that may figure in numerous damage suits being brought in civil courts.

The suits, involving many millions of dollars, are being filed against various electrical manufacturing companies as a result of the Philadelphia antitrust prosecutions.

Inquiry Stalled
Kefauver threatened to call late night sessions to get the stalled inquiry under way. He said Wiley was trying to put the subcommittee out of business by limiting its field of inquiry.

In insisting on public hearings into what he called "huge and blatant conspiracies," Kefauver said: "An informed public is an essential part of the legislative process."

"Any legislation, if it is to be worth anything," he said, "must be understood by the public."

John C. Fink, a department manager of the Westinghouse Electric Corp. from Bloomington, Ind., was sworn in as the first witness but had to sit in silence as the subcommittee members wrangled.

Wiley moved that the subcommittee go into executive session to hear the testimony, contending as he did Thursday that the publicity from an open hearing would prevent the fair trial of damage suits.

Kefauver overruled the motion, and Wiley demanded a vote by the subcommittee.

When Kefauver called for a vote Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Nebr., objected that the Senate was in session. There is a rule that committee meetings may be held while the Senate is in session only if no member objects, and Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., had served notice of objection.

Hruska retorted that he did not propose to be "buffeted around" by the chairman and would not submit to meetings being called at "arbitrary and outlandish hours."

'Out Of This World' Welcome For Gagarin

MOSCOW (AP)—The man who orbited around the world flew into Moscow's warmest embrace Friday for acclaim as the Soviet Union's greatest postwar hero.

He was cheered by millions, hugged and kissed by Premier Khrushchev, hailed as a new Columbus, and decorated with the highest Soviet honors at a Kremlin reception matching the splendor of the czars.

The adulation for Maj. Yuri A. Gagarin went on from noon until nearly midnight. It was an outpouring of affection such as probably no son of Russia ever has seen in a single day's celebration.

And the short, 27-year-old flier, swept in a week from obscurity to the history book, took it calmly and smilingly, assuring the Soviet people that he was ready to undertake new flights deeper into space.

Khrushchev told the elite of Soviet leaders and scientists in the Kremlin Palace that Gagarin's flight into space has given the Soviet Union "a colossal superiority" over the West.

Will Live Forever
To the thousands massed earlier in Red Square, the premier said that the name of Gagarin—unknown to most Russians and the world until three days ago—will live forever among mankind's immortals.

Khrushchev toasted him. President Leonid Brezhnev pinned on him the Order of Hero of the Soviet Union, the nation's highest.

The three highspot ceremonies of the day took place at the airport, Red Square and the Kremlin reception.

When Gagarin flew in from the interior, 20-gun salutes boomed out in Moscow and throughout the nation.

Most of Moscow's seven million population seemed to turn out in a city red with the banners and flags of the Soviet Union and

Failure To Fight Amazes Diplomats

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Western diplomats here were plunged into despair Friday by the evacuation—without a major fight—of royal paratroopers dropped near Muong Kassy nine days ago.

The Westerners had hoped for a decisive push by royal forces before an expected cease-fire is negotiated with pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebel leaders.

The evacuation wrote off as a failure one of the most spectacular operations of the civil war—the April 5 air drop interpreted by Westerners as a warning to the Pathet Lao that government forces still were powerful despite a succession of defeats.

Young American civilian pilots flying U. S.-made helicopters plucked the red-betted paratroopers from a valley northwest of Muong Kassy Thursday and took them to the royal capital of Luang Prabang.

The paratroopers had been dropped near the north-south highway between Luang Prabang and the administrative capital of Vientiane to counter paratroopers the Pathet Lao had thrown into the fight April 3 for royal military headquarters at Vang Vieng.

Other Version
Government officials claimed their paratroopers had accomplished their mission of halting the rebel drive southward. But earlier this week Moscow radio reported the government paratroopers were encircled.

It was reliably reported in Vientiane that the evacuation finally was forced by the failure of Gen. Boun Leuth, government commander in chief based in Luang Prabang, to commit infantry from the north to support the paratroopers and outflank Pathet Lao units.

Gen. Kouprasith Abhay, government commander in the Vang Vieng area, was said to consider the whole paratrooper operation useless without such support.

By SPENCER DAVIS
Washington (AP)—U. S. officials said Friday there is some evidence that Moscow may give its answer to an American-backed British proposal for a cease-fire in Laos within the next three days.

The reply apparently was timed to coincide with the arrival of Prince Souvanna Phouma next Tuesday.

U. S. officials did not conceal their concern at the prolonged Soviet silence. The United States has said it will not agree to attend any conference on Laos until the fighting had been stopped.

Officials disclosed for the first time that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov told Kennedy nearly three weeks ago that the Soviet Union would reply in three days to Britain's cease-fire call.

Law Permits Oyster Sales In Any Month

HARRISBURG (AP)—After 190 years it became legal Friday to sell oysters in Pennsylvania in months without "r's."

Gov. Lawrence signed legislation repealing the 1771 act involving the prohibition.

The law also forbade the sale of rock fish between March 1 and December 1.

Sale or possession of oysters was forbidden under the act between May 10 and September 1.

Reason behind the law, legislators said, was inadequate refrigeration of the times made the oysters subject to spoilage.

Lawrence also signed into law a repeal of the requirement that persons licensed to deal in oleo-margarine make monthly reports of all transactions to the Agriculture Department.

Eichmann Is Seeking 'Protection'

JERUSALEM (AP)—Adolf Eichmann's defense attorney told a panel of Israeli judges Friday he will seek German legal protection for the onetime Nazi officer accused of directing the wartime massacre of millions of Jews.

The West German government took a dim view of the idea. Robert Servatius, the Cologne lawyer selected by Eichmann as defense counsel, injected that element in the trial at the close of the first week's proceedings.

Immediately after Servatius' announcement, court adjourned to consider his arguments against trying Eichmann in Israel. The judges will rule after the trial resumes Monday.

Speaking in a steady, level voice, Servatius asserted: "The accused has a claim for protection from his country. Even if no appropriate action in this direction is forthcoming from the government in Germany, he can apply to an administrative authority for this protection and this will be done."

An official of the West German government said, however, that any effort by Servatius to obtain West German legal protection for Eichmann would be fought.

Hans Stercken, West German press officer, said: "The West German government will stick by its refusal to ask for Adolf Eichmann's extradition and will fight in the courts any suit in which he claims legal protection from West Germany."

The contention that Eichmann was kidnapped and forcibly brought to Israel against his will forms one of the principal arguments in Servatius' challenge to the authority of an Israeli court in this case.

The chunky, white-haired defense attorney repeated charges that a declaration signed by Eichmann in which the former head of the Gestapo's Jewish affairs section expresses a willingness to be tried in Israel, was signed under duress.

Servatius asserted German courts have competently dealt with cases similar to the Eichmann affair in several instances since the war.

Eichmann is being tried under the Nazis and Nazi collaborators law passed by the Israeli Parliament in 1950. Servatius has argued this law is inapplicable in the Eichmann case since it was enacted after the crimes of which Eichmann is accused were committed.

Today's Lesson: When The Righteous Suffer

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
"THERE was a man in the land of Uz, whose name was Job; and that man was perfect and upright, and one that feared God, and eschewed evil."
—Job 1:1.

He was a rich man—owning many sheep, camels, oxen and asses, "and a very great household"—and a great man in the East.

He had seven sons and three daughters, and they were apparently a congenial and happy family.
"Now there was a day when the sons of Job came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan came also among them. And the Lord said unto Satan: 'Hast thou considered My servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a perfect and an upright man, one that feareth God, and escheweth evil?'"

Satan answered, sarcastically, no doubt, "Doth Job fear God for nought?"—Job 1:6-9.

Satan also said that the Lord had "hedged Job about" so that he had prospered. "But put forth thine hand now, and touch all that he hath, and he will curse thee to thy face."
—Job 1:10-11.

"And the Lord said unto Satan, behold, he is in thy hand; but save his life."—Job 2:6.

Satan "smote Job with sore boils from the sole of his foot unto his crown."—Job 2:7.
Job felt that he had no friends left, and even his wife told him to "curse God and die."

But Job said, "What shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil?"—Job 2:9-10.
Three friends heard of Job's misfortunes and came to comfort him—Eliphaz, Bildad and Zophar. They stayed with him seven days and seven nights, but did not speak to him, "for they saw his grief was very great."—Job 2:11-13.

Dr. Hamill Shipp Is Guest Speaker Sunday

AS a part of the program in its school of missions the Commission on Missions of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church is most happy to present as its second speaker and resource leader, Dr. Hamill P. Shipp, a surgeon on the staff of the Cooper Memorial Hospital, Camden, N.J., and the lay leader of the New Jersey Conference of the Methodist Church.

Dr. Shipp will be presented to the congregation by Dr. Llewellyn Hunsicker, who received part of his surgical training with Dr. Shipp at the Cooper Hospital. Dr. Shipp will speak Sunday at 7 p.m.

A most interesting sequence of events is brought to climax in Dr. Shipp's coming here. In the summer of 1955 Rev. and Mrs. Eaton were sent by the local church on a mission to Japan. They were assigned to a mountain city in north Japan, Tajima, in Fukushima-Ken. While there they met and brought into active association in the church Dr. Kenyo Higuchi, a young surgeon working in the Ken hospital. Then, upon their return to the states the Eatons were able to secure a year's internship for Dr. Higuchi in the department of gynecology at Cooper Hospital, where he worked under Dr. Shipp.

Recently Dr. Shipp went to Japan and spent two weeks sharing American skills and techniques in surgery at the Nigata Hospital, the present assignment of Dr. Higuchi.

Search For 20th Century Ideal Church Continues

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
THE churches are struggling today to discover what they ought to look like.

In the midst of the biggest religious building boom in American history, a wide-ranging quest is on to develop a style of structure that best meets the needs and expresses the message of 20th-century Christianity.

"The answer has not been found," says Columbia University architect Eugene Raskin. "But in a thousand church-board meeting rooms and a thousand architects' offices, the search goes on."

It is a search that has radiated in many and sundry directions, and resulted in a variegated melange of new church designs, often individualistic and startling, and breaking widely with traditional patterns.

One thing seems clear. The old Gothic spires and arches, the colonial belfries, the elaborate frescos, pillars and porticos are giving way rapidly to more functional, contemporary styles.

A definite turn in the road has been taken, says Boston architect Arland A. Dirlam. "Contemporary architecture has proved itself. It is not longer merely a fad but truly a trend."

He adds, however, that there is "confusion everywhere" — among both church leaders and architects — over just what factors should dominate the design of churches in the present age.

That is the situation, as about 1,200 architects and church leaders got set to meet in Pittsburgh next week, from Tuesday through Thursday, at a national church architectural conference.

"Monstrosities, monuments and models" is the title of the keynote address to be given by Presbyterian theologian Dr. Theophilus M. Taylor. Those words reflect the reactions to the variety of new church buildings now going up.

In any case, at the height of an unprecedented spiral in church building outlays that last year topped a billion dollars for the first time, church design is in a state of flux.

The dismaying fact is that for the first time in Christian history, the church building has ceased to exercise a formative influence on all architecture," says the Rev. Marvin P. Halverson, a specialist on church art forms.

In past periods, church architecture has taken on definite qualities, reflecting the mood of the times. Out of the Middle Ages, with its view of God as impenetrable mystery, came the awesome cathedrals with dim vaults and remote altars.

"Today the poor architect just does not know what his church is to say," Raskin writes in the Nation. "A new and valid contemporary church expression must be found, regardless of how many eyebrows are lifted or sentiments offended."

Many conditions have arisen in religious life spurring architectural changes, including the demand for educational and recreational facilities. Liturgical reforms also have brought closer ties between congregation and altar.

"We recognize that we are in the ugly duckling stage," Dirlam writes in the Christian Century.

The worship area, he says, still dominates in present churches, but it is complemented with nurseries, modern kitchens, classrooms, business-like administration offices, and youth parlors with coke machines and record players.

The Pittsburgh conference is being sponsored by the Church Architectural Guild of America and the National Council of Churches.

Aid Clean-up Detail At Church

DELAWARE WATER GAP—Nine men reported recently for a clean-up job at the Presbyterian Church here. The men cleared away the trees that had been cut down.

In addition to clearing the trees away they opened a drain on the church driveway to allow water from a spring to enter the sewer line and not endanger the flooding of the basement of the church.

Those reporting for work were Rev. Francis Seely, Bennett Strait, Jack LaBar, Guy Kemper, Harold Crossdale, Donald Nase and Walter Decker.

MY WISH

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

| Day | Book | Chapter | Verses |

| Monday | Psalms | 144 | 11-12 |
| Tuesday | I John | 4 | 4-7 |

Three is such a tender age. Sue isn't a baby any more, yet she's a long way from being a big girl.

When I watched her blowing out the candles on her cake, I felt a surge of that certain kind of love reserved for mothers. And, while she made her wish, I made mine.

I wished, first, that I might be given the gift of memory, so that I would never forget a child's point of view—the importance of even the littlest promises, the oldest dolls, the smallest nothings.

I wished that I might be given the wisdom to care for Sue's body, mind, and soul. And I was deeply grateful that I had the Church to help me teach her right from wrong, and to aid me in endowing her with a rich measure of faith, of love, and of tolerance toward her fellow man.

Thinking it over, I guess that my wish for Sue might be called a prayer. Each Sunday, in church, I find myself repeating it.

Cloudy Picture

President Kennedy remarked the other day that he hoped farmers would join up with his new "voluntary" feed grain plan, thus assuring themselves of a good support price and enabling the government to save money on the farm program.

But the Department of Agriculture isn't content merely to hope that farmers will volunteer. The Commodity Credit Corp. (a government arm) has been busily dumping corn on the market to drive the price down and frighten farmers into "volunteering." This brought about "the sharpest March decline in 13 years," the Wall Street Journal reported.

Thus the farmer is warned to sign up for supports at $1.20 and for acreage curtailment or try to survive in a market where the CCC has proved it can keep the price of corn down around $1.05.

Already, about 80 percent of Illinois farmers and about 60 percent of Iowa farmers have seen the handwriting on the crib wall and signed. What else could they do?

But how about the second part of the administration plan—reducing the cost of the farm program to the government?

The administration's March revision of the budget ups the spending of the Agriculture Department by $658 million—the largest increase outside the Defense Department.

Meanwhile, the National Farmers Organization is in the midst of a drive to hold cattle off the market to drive prices up, and it claims some success.

If the meat packers were to do the same thing, they'd be in line for prosecution under the anti-trust laws.

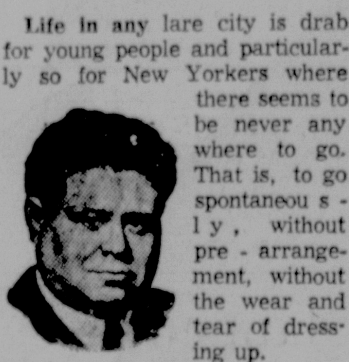

Those who profess to see silver linings in the cloudy farm policy picture today must be overlooking some of the realities.

'That's Why I Don't Believe in Free Elections'

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Silenced Songfest

Life in any large city is drab for young people and particularly so for New Yorkers where there seems to be never any where to go. That is, to go spontaneously, without pre-arrangement, without the wear and tear of dressing up.

And so, for 17 years, young people have been foregathered in the fountain of Washington Square on a Sunday afternoon to sing folk songs. I do not know who started all this, but it grew so that many came and boy met girl, and mandolins and guitars were brought along.

There was a spirit of gaiety and of belonging, although occasionally there, as anywhere else, a bum came among the sheep, a heroin pusher, or a homosexual seeking a mate or something like that. Of course, such will be found in any large crowd in New York and one place is as good or bad as another.

For 17 years, these songfests continued and nobody much bothered about it. The beatniks came with their whiskers and their gals wore long hair and all their faces were grubby which is their symbol of revolt—but it is better to rebel by not using lipstick than to rebel by throwing bombs. Youth will rebel and these do it by singing folk songs and reciting drab poetry, the kind that depends not upon the depth of thought but upon a sort of onomatopoeia which is hereabouts fashionable, although not as competently done as by Edgar Allan Poe.

And so, of a Sunday, they sang and the police were silent. During most of the 17 years, the Commissioner of Parks in New York City was Robert Moses, the great builder. Robert Moses has a sense of humor as well as wit.

No one asked his consent for these folks to sing, but he said nothing about it. In a word, he winked his eye at the rule that to do almost anything in a park one needs a permit. Moses believed that parks were for people, and if the people wanted to sing, surely it was better for their souls than to move about moodily counting their shekels. So he let them sing.

But now, in New York, there is a new Commissioner of Parks, Newbold Morris, who is tall and handsome and correct in his conduct but whose sense of humor is negative. Whereas Moses could be guilty of a belly-laugh, Morris politely smiles.

At any rate, he told the police to stop the singing, lest the grass and shrubs suffer. And the Police Commissioner fell in with Morris's plot to silence the singing with the result that the police struck at these young people with clubs and pictures were taken of it all and now Khrushchev can circulate these pictures all over the Earth showing how the American police club the common people, even the bearded ones, whose only crime is that they want to sing.

If our policy suffers because no one takes us seriously, it is due to just such stupidities, for how can anyone believe that this is a free country, if young people are not free to sing? Imagine the nations of Latin America viewing the pictures that appeared on television of cops heroically clubbing singers, who wanted to sing, "Roll Out the Barrel!"

Why send the Peace Corps hither and yon if we also send such photographs not of brutality but of stupidity? Is it possible for any one anywhere on this Earth to understand why people may not foregather in Central Park to listen to insipid politicians vocalize on the glories of being an American?

Therefore, let all and sundry know that it is no crime to sing anywhere; that what is baneful is gloom and pessimism. It is said that some folks who live on Washington Square resent these young people coming there to have a good time.

They feel that there is a traditional exclusiveness about the Washington Square area where once Society bloomed. Well, it is just too bad that the only sounds on the streets are honking horns and the roar of automobiles and buses.

There used to be hurdy-gurdies and organ grinders and all sorts of music, including a monkey who would doff his hat to beg for a penny and bring joy to the hearts of children.

God save us from stuffed shirts.

Off The Record

By Bob Clark

Is television good or bad for our children?

Well, a trio of men—Wilbur Schramm, Jack Lyle, and Edwin Parker—delved into the problem and came up with some interesting facts.

Taking a survey of 6,000 children in the age group of 3-16, the threesome found that the average North American child spends one-sixth of his waking hours watching television. This is as much time as he spends in school, more time than he devotes to any other activity except sleep and play.

The study reveals that one-third of all children are already viewing television by age 3, two-thirds age 4, 80 per cent by kindergarten time, and 90 per cent by the time they enter first grade. The average child views a little over two hours a day at age 6; this time gradually increases to a peak between three and four hours at about age 12; then falls back again to about two hours a day.

Parents (2,000) and teachers (300) were interviewed to gain concrete evidence and their thoughts were that television does not hold first place among the media in prestige with children, but it does hold a secure place in their affections and their leisure-time plans. And it is a medium they would miss most if they had to do without it.

The period most watched is from 4 to 9 p.m. While there is a number of worthwhile programs during this time, for the most part, the children went for the carnival of violence. Eliminating all the cartoons, slapstick and other funny violence, there were 12 murders, three suicides, almost continuous shooting and sluggings and a wide variety of violent conduct and crimes, including even a guillotining and a man being trampled under the hoofs of a horse.

The answer showed they didn't find whether video was good or bad for children. Other aspects must be considered, they felt before the outcome is pinpointed such as home life and etc.

However, it does give a person with the right frame of mind the good and bad sought by the authors Television in the Lives of Our Children.

What are your feelings?

The Allen-Scott Report

New Solid-Fuel Rocket

Washington—President Kennedy moves quickly and forcefully when he gets an idea—as Space Administrator James Webb startlingly learned during lunch hour.

In a brief telephone discussion with Webb, highlighted by a series of searching questions, the President set in motion what may turn out to be a huge new solid-fuel rocket program.

This possible new space program would have two main objectives—one immediate, the other long-range:

Immediate goal would be the development of a solid-fuel rocket with a 3 million-lb. thrust earlier than the much-publicized liquid-fuel SATURN that is to have a 1.5 million-lb. thrust. SATURN is slated to undergo its first tests at the Cape Canaveral, Fla., missile center later this year, and to become operational sometime in 1964.

Long-range goal is the development of a solid-fuel rocket with a thrust up to 10 million lbs.

A detailed report on the feasibility of such a stupendous new rocket program is to be in the President's hands by May 15. What happens then depends on the recommendations made by Space Administrator Webb and his scientists, and the President's reaction to them.

In the meanwhile, in a few minutes' telephone conversation, he launched what may be the genesis of history-making space and missile projects.

Russia is considerably ahead of the U.S. in thrust capability. The Soviet is known to have rockets with 1 million-lb. thrust, and to be developing others with many times that power. This thrust superiority is the basis of the Red's successes in space ventures.

The National Aeronautics & Space Administration, headed by Webb, and the three armed services are developing various solid-fuel missiles, but none with the tremendous lifting capacity envisioned by the President.

NASA is working on the solid-fuel SCOUT, but it will be able to put only a small missile into orbit. The Navy has produced the highly effective solid-fuel POLARIS ballistic missile capable of delivering a nuclear warhead 1,500 miles, a range that is being extended to 2,600 miles.

The Air Force is now testing its solid-fuel MINUTEMAN ballistic missile that is to have a range of 5,000 miles. This devastating weapon is slated to become operational by 1963. And the Army is developing the 500-mile solid-fuel PERSHING missile.

How it happened—The revealing incident that led to NASA's new mission, and which graphically illustrates how the President functions, is as follows:

While lunching from a tray on his desk, the President pored over a group of reports on U.S. and Russian rocket booster capabilities. Suddenly a thought struck him, and he picked up the phone and called Webb, who also was lunching at his desk.

"I have just read a report," said the President, "that states categorically that if the solid-fuel industry is given the priority and funds, it can develop a 3-million-lb. thrust booster before SATURN becomes operational. Do you think that is possible?"

"I haven't seen that particular report," replied Webb. "But a number of highly competent scientists both in my agency and in industry believe that solid-fuel rockets with as much or greater thrusts than SATURN can be developed quicker and cheaper than liquid-fuel rockets. However, there are other equally competent scientists who dispute that, and don't think it can be done."

"Which do you think is right," asked the President. "Are you looking into the matter?"

"We have some engineering and feasibility studies underway," said Webb.

"What are their status?" continued the President.

"You have me there, Mr. President," admitted Webb. "I don't know. But I will find out at once and call you back."

"Do that, please," said the President. "And also, please, put your staff to work on a solid-fuel program that I would like to have in my hands by the middle of May, or sooner if possible. This program should include rockets with thrusts up to 10 million lbs. In the meantime, I am particularly anxious to get a report on whether a solid-fuel engine with 3 million-lb. thrust can be developed before the liquid-fuel SATURN booster is operational."

"If that can be done, then we should start working on that kind of booster right away."

Immediately after the President's call, Webb sent out a rush summons for his top assistants and told them, "I know you all have your hands full, but the President wants a detailed report on a huge new solid-fuel program by May 15, and we must get it to him. He means business."

Dr. William Cohen, NASA chief of solid-fuel rockets, believes a 3 million-lb. thrust engine can be developed before the liquid-fuel SATURN becomes operational. So does Harold Ritchey, president of the American Rocket Society.

Dr. Werner von Braun, in charge of SATURN, disagrees. The noted German-born rocket pioneer contends the 1.5 million-lb. thrust liquid-fuel thrust is too far advanced to be overtaken by a new solid-fuel undertaking.

Kraft Ehrhke, another German-born rocket pioneer who is now a Convair official, holds the U.S. must take drastic measures to catch up with the Soviet in rocket engine thrust. At present, instead of doing that, this country is falling further behind.

This view is forcefully voiced in one of the reports President Kennedy read prior to his eventual telephone conversation with Space Administrator Webb. Highlight of that report is:

"Soviet vehicle development has proceeded faster than ours in the last two years. We cannot ignore the definite possibility that the Soviet could have a cluster of eight engines with thrusts in excess of 3.5 million lbs. by the time our 1.5 million lb. booster is operational. . . . The U.S. has persisted in taking a 'poor man's' approach to space exploration."

Since taking office on January 20, President Kennedy has added $113 million to speed up development of rockets with greater thrust. However, all these funds have been allocated for liquid-fuel projects.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Baseball's Unmatched Appeal

For many years, baseball has been recognized and accepted as America's national sport. It is a game of the people, the spectator sport that blends all social and intellectual classes into one cheering collection of Americans.

It is the little boy who skips classes to sit in the bleachers. It is the top executive who shuns a high level conference to rub elbows with the man who delivers his milk or his mail, the man who trucks his products or packs them—to sit in the grandstand and chew on peanuts or hot dogs and wash them down with a bottle of soda pop.

Baseball is a free man's privilege to jump up and cheer, or boo—to grandstand manage when apparent victory for the home team suddenly turns into disappointing defeat.

And in today's fast moving world, as we look longingly at paths to other planets and strive doggedly to keep the peace, professional baseball's National and American League pennant races, its home runs and strikeouts, its eager rookies and canny veterans, baseball remains, despite expansion moves, air travel, and other changes, an anchor of stability on the American scene.

Not even a broadening open road or the varied entertainments of television have dimmed baseball's popular beacon. It continues to hold its basic place in the hearts of Americans. The ball and the bat mean a game for all, offering the opportunity to every boy to compete on an equal footing with his fellows. The umpires' shout of "Play ball!" heard this week from coast to coast, carries an unmatched appeal.

DEAR MR. EDITOR:

Federal Funds For Secular Schools

Dear Mr. Editor:

"The prudent man saw the evil, and hid himself; the simple passed on, and suffered loss." Proverbs 22:3. (Douay Version) 1950.

"The thoughtless believeth every word; but the prudent man looketh well to his going." Jewish Pub. Soc. 1955.

Seventy days ago, John F. Kennedy became President of the United States of America. Upon the subject in hand, his campaign and Presidential position were as clear-cut as any citizen should wish. Within a short time, the blurring, nibbling, wheedling, grabbing began. Its impact upon the President is apparent. Some of the election's asserted gains are in serious danger of loss already.

How ought the Citizens, the Congress, the President decide? Do not the following facts reply?

Prof. Sutherland of Harvard declares it is useless to attempt finding in the Constitution, "where the secular ends and the sectarian begins in education". He is correct. He could have added to education other items.

What next, then? From such silence, can one say the Constitution is an open door to most anything? Since the Law does not say no, therefore, it says yes? Or since it does not say yes, does it, therefore, say no? Conceding this lets room for any decision.

However, does not such an impasse, instead of leading to nothing, indicate another and more responsible and conclusive basis of decision? An area of deciding apart from Law? And also above Law?

Is not this area the one implied clearly in Jesus' statement of the relation of State and Church, the Religious and the Secular, in his words: "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's"? It is obvious that He allocated such a division of resources to no legal body but lodged them in the hands of the persons to whom he was speaking—that is, people.

can be maintained, independently and self-supportingly? Has not such response to just askings been, upon the whole, one of the glories of our history? Does not our Constitution put bills for money in the Lower House of Nation and of States, because Representatives are held to be nearest to the spirit of the Citizens?

Have prosperity, planned fear, regimentation and educated ignorance well-nigh destroyed that spirit of response, spontaneous and trustworthy?

Prof. Sutherland referred to decisions, based where Law does not specify on "prepossessions". What, let us ask, where our Constitution does not specify, what prepossessions should be basic to decision?

Pre-possession means to have a certain something in one's experience, mind and spirit before he is summoned to make a decision. The prepossessions every real, true, intelligent Citizen of the U. S. A. has can be only those feelings, thoughts, understandings which emerge from the second Paragraph of the Declaration of Independence.

It reads: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.—That whenever any form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness."

Beyond these vast principles, pre-possession, for Citizens of the U. S. A. have no right to exist.

Upon this matter of federal funds to secular education, much is being written about the precedents of former federal actions in secular matters. These are referred to with the assumption that they are a justification, a warrant for contemporary proposals.

Such a position assumes, too, that, because those precedents came into being, they were right. Suppose they were violations of the Constitution? Do previous violations justify a present one? Two wrongs do not make a right is axiomatic ethical principle.

Ought not healthy Americanism repudiate those precedents and squish, once and for all, any repetition of them? Have we lost that spirit which Walt Whitman saw one day in a man's face and characterized in the line: "This face is commanding and bearded, it asks no odds of the rest."

Again, Supposing Peter founded a Church, were not the keys given him the "keys of the kingdom of heaven" but not to the kingdoms of earth, including the U. S. Treasury? Should not a sense of the fitting remind us that federal funds are derived from varied sources?

Moreover, inasmuch as those who allocate federal funds are responsible for their use, are not those receiving such funds, properly and justly, under some degree of supervision and control of those who allocate them?

And since such funds come from the pockets of folks of all denominations, do not these people have some right and duty to have some say about their use? The Bible (Douay Version) in Proverbs 22:7, reads, "The borrower is servant to him that lendeth".

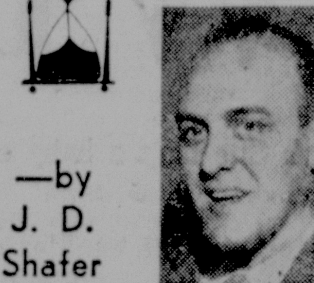

Is not the Lord's approved way of sustaining His Church the way of the tithe? Was not a very rich and powerful man of old right when he put the Lord into partnership in man's own economy by way of the tithe: "Honor the Lord with thy substance, and give him of the first of all thy fruits; and thy barns shall be filled with abundance. . . ." Proverbs 3:9-10.

To the same point are not these words of Christ Himself: "If ye have not been faithful in that which is another man's who shall give you that which is your own?" Luke 16:11.

Finally, if the denominations, Protestant, Catholic, Jewish or other, as well as the parents who freely send their children to parochial schools, regard such schools as so much better than our public schools, ought they not to be willing, and-or ready, and-or perfectly content to bear the costs?

Mirror of Time

10 Years Ago

The summer home of a Brooklyn, N.Y., family was destroyed by fire shortly after they had left to return to New York. The house was located near the Cherry Valley Methodist Church.

The congregation of the Salem Reformed Church in Gilbert adopted a resolution to oppose the stock car race track that was next to the church property.

Trout season opened in Monroe County with the reported catch as "not so good." High waters in the area hampered many fishermen in their attempt to "wet a line."

20 Years Ago

The Democratic Party of Monroe County held a Jefferson Day Dinner in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Fire destroyed the roof of a small building in South Stroudsburg. The building was used by William Counterman to house a cow. The cow was removed from the danger while firemen fought the blaze.

The state legislature voted in favor of legalizing Sunday bowling. The vote was 105 to 88.

The second day of trout season showed that the catches were plentiful and several large fish were reported to have been caught.

The Broadway-Hollywood Stage La Bardot is La Furious over the "B. B. Story," which she shrieks is "unauthorized." The author is George Carpozi, Jr., an editor at The N. Y. Journal-American.

Survey Of Ex-Patients Indicates Hospital Provided Excellent Care

By BOBBY WESTBROOK
FORMER patients at the Monroe County General Hospital were agreed that the hospital had provided excellent care—but they didn't know that they were the ones who owned it.

A recent survey of 188 former patients revealed a big gap in their knowledge about the hospital, who owns it, who runs it and how it is supported. Patients interviewed included a sampling of various types of cases: Medical, surgical, obstetrical and accident cases. The average length of stay was 20 days.

The survey revealed a corresponding lack of general knowledge on the part of the community itself.

To obtain an objective

"image" of the hospital in the community and from former patients, the board of trustees of the hospital employed the Nixon-Austin-Ireland Corp. to conduct an opinion survey, the results of which have been reported to the board.

Educational Program
As a result of these findings the board has authorized an educational program which will include a speakers bureau, an annual report, a booklet for patients and programs in the schools.

One of the most important developments will be the appointment of an Advisory Council of citizens. They will represent all of the areas served by the hospital and all the elements of the population including professions, management, labor, hotel and resort owners, industry and schools.

Through all of these media, the board will attempt to inform the residents of important facts about the hospital itself:

1. It is a community hospital, owned by all the residents of the area.
2. It is supported by the Monroe County Community Chest and by voluntary gifts.
3. "Free" patient care is given support by the county of Monroe and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.
4. The hospital is operated by a board of elected citizens who serve without pay.

Studying Results
The board is studying the detailed results of the survey also with an eye to improving areas where there was criticism or misunderstanding.

The survey firm compared the results with similar surveys completed in other cities and reported that the local hospital appears to exceed or equal others surveyed as to quality of services, but there is a need to strengthen communications between the hospital and the citizen.

Specific results of the survey included the following areas:

To the critical question, "Would you again choose the General Hospital for future care?" Ninety-one per cent answered "yes."

There was less agreement on other questions:

Admission procedure: 60 per cent had completed the information themselves for admission while the remaining 40 per cent had other members of the family do it. Of those who completed it themselves, one found the interview too long and two found it tiresome. However, all but two found the physical arrangements for admission satisfactory.

Discharge and billing: All but one considered the interview conditions satisfactory, three former patients suggested a more detailed bill. Of the interviewees, 81 per cent had insurance of some type and 16 per cent had none.

Medical Care: 71% excellent, 22% good, 7% fair and none poor.

Nursing Care: 63% excellent, 29% good, 8% fair, none poor.

Food Service: 21% excellent, 39% good, 26% fair, 14% poor.

Physical facilities and management: All but one patient considered their room comfortable; all but four considered the total surroundings pleasant; and all but three considered the management satisfactory. The exceptions were based on such criticism as bathroom fixtures needing attention; dirt; and overcrowded conditions. 72 per cent recognized that the hospital is too crowded.

Future support: 81 per cent said that they would support a program designed to expand the hospital and improve its facilities.

Of the others, nine said they could not afford support; seven out-of-the-area patients said that their own hospital came first; and one said that he was already paying taxes (The General Hospital is not tax-supported).

Public Information: 66 per cent said that they read the hospital news in the local paper; 4 per cent said they saw items in Easton and Allentown papers; 70 per cent said they would like to receive an annual report.

Specific Criticisms covering varied fields:

(A) The out-patient department needs to be changed to provide privacy for interviews and to cut down on the time a patient must wait before being attended.

(B) The transfers of nurses may be detrimental to patient care.

(C) Some medical patients, such as those needing heart care, should be put in a section where they would have a minimum of disturbance.

(D) Billings are not always clear.

(E) 90 per cent considered the visiting privileges adequate but 10 per cent considered the time too short.

The most unanimous approval from everyone was on the volunteer services provided by the Gray Ladies of the American Red Cross.

President of the board, Jere H. Stofflet, has expressed satisfaction with the results of the survey but emphasized that the survey was dedicated to the necessity to provide the best possible hospital facilities for all of the residents.

In commenting on the show, Prof. Francis J. Here is an expressionist. He simply cannot 'not paint.' He records the daily

S-burg Marine Graduates

MARINE Col. Richard E. Roth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Roth, of 8 Foundry St., Stroudsburg, was graduated recently from the Non-commissioned Officers Leadership School at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

The four-week course simulates actual combat and is designed to develop leadership abilities so that during an emergency a marine could assume command of a platoon or company.

Before enlisting in March 1952, Roth was graduated from Stroudsburg High School.

goings on about him with speed and vigor. This is apparent in the "Flowering Pinks." The hill-top represented is covered with a sprawling mass of flowers, seeming to support a far-away house.

"Tower of Babel — Night Shift" is — as are many of Strauser's works — bathed in a gentle intrigue that typifies the man. Here again he skillfully avoids being a social commentator or embroiling himself in issues.

"Waving Come Again" and 'Joey' are records of the thought provoking observations that make Strauser a romanticist, but the floral series 'Daffodils' and 'Poppies' are summations based on intellectualism and experimental techniques. This ability of the artist to move from fact to fancy, and his conviction that each work is its own especial definition permits him to paint without the slightest restriction which a 'label' might require.

"Lonesome at the Circus," "Girl on Trapeze," and "Bicycle Group" represent a phase of Strauser as a harmonist in color. The muted tones are integrated with considerable subtleties. In contrast "Flowers and Russian Bench" is an explosive burst of color escaping the bouquet and inviting one to participate in its gaiety.

"This is not true of the horse racing series which places the observer apart and reports on the varied designs the racers provide. The finest of these is 'Harness Race #1' in which distortion for effect in design lends an expressionistic quality to the work.

"Sterling Strauser is as lucid and gay as quicksilver. He probably cares less what people think of him than any other living human being could. He concerns himself with fastening down his responses to life, and his delight is in the pleasure others find in his work.

Driver Nabbed In Accident

AN ALDEN, Pa., motorist will face charges of reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident as the result of a car-house collision at 5:05 p. m. yesterday in Wind Gap.

He was identified as Michael Rudowski, 50, of 71 E. Almar Ave., Alden.

Police Chief Leo Reinhart, of Wind Gap, said Rudowski lost control of his car as it rounded a curve on a hill on N. Broadway. The vehicle mounted the curb and crashed into the front porch of the home of Beatrice Schoudt, knocking the porch down.

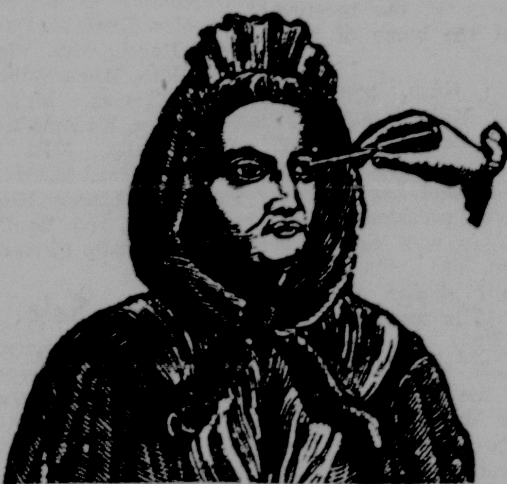

Rudowski drove from the scene, but his license number was given to Wind Gap police by a passerby and was broadcast to other area police.

Rudowski was apprehended by State Police from Easton on Route 115 near the Forks Township Fire House about 10 minutes later.

Reinhart was assisted in the investigation by Police Chief Thomas Nottle, of Bushkill Township. Damage was estimated at $500 to the home and $150 to Rudowski's car.

Second Mathematics Problem

THE FOLLOWING is an Algebra II problem which was in a previous Monroe County Mathematics Tournament: "A" can do a piece of work alone in 8 days. After working alone for 2 days, he is joined by "B" and together they finish the work in 2 more days. How long would it take "B" alone to do the work?

Solution to Problem No. 1
To solve the problem you must divide the total distance traveled by the total time to travel this total distance.

Average Rate equals total Distance-total Time.

Average Rate equals (20 plus 4h)/(4 plus h).

The total time is obtained by adding the 4 hours at 5 miles per hour and the "h" hours at 4 miles per hour which gives a total of 4 plus h. The total distance is obtained by adding the distance at 5 miles per hour for 4 hours and the distance at 4 miles per hour for "h" hours which gives a total of 20 plus 4h.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

"I'm wearing high heeled shoes on very specific orders from my son," confided the first-grade mother sitting next to me. "He told me that his teacher was going to wear high heels, and would I please take off my loafers before I came."

My heart went out to her in understanding and sympathy. How many of us over how many years have gone to school functions with just such instructions ringing in our ears. The more things change, the more they are the same I thought comfortingly, as the original musical written by the children themselves proceeds on its merry way.

Conceded that first graders look younger every year, but they also seem smarter, confounding you with the fact that such babies know so much, performing with such evident enjoyment and aplomb. The songs are new and so are the poems and the choral readings and more delightful—but the rhythm band sounds just the same.

The mothers, bless them, look younger, too—but they've got the same problems: the pre-school children they've had to wake from their sleepily-harried look that means that everything's happened at home while they were hurrying to get ready.

And while their appreciation and evident enjoyment of all the children was generous and unfeigned, for each mother there was really only one child on the platform, and where he was, whatever he was doing, it was there that the spotlight glowed.

For me, too, there was only one child there; and the fact that she was that sacrosanct creature called "Teacher" up there directing the whole production, regulating the lives of all the other mothers and forcing them into high heeled shoes at 11 o'clock in the morning, didn't make a bit of difference. That baby was mine!

Nursing Scholarships Awarded

A committee of Past Presidents of the Four County Council of the American Legion Aux. have awarded two scholarships valued at $300 each for nurse training.

Miss Barbara Reese of Summit Hill has been accepted for training at the Chestnut Hill Hospital. Her father was a veteran and is deceased.

Miss Bette Ann Keiber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keiber of Easton, has been accepted at the Eastern Hospital School of Nursing. She has given 349½ hours of volunteer service to the hospital.

The scholarship is awarded each year and is awarded to the daughter of a deceased veteran, a disabled veteran or either of the two World Wars or the Korean conflict, who in the judgment of the committee needs a helping hand in attaining her goal. No girl was eligible last year, so the councils of Carbon, Northampton, Lehigh and Monroe is awarding two scholarships this year.

Another scholarship will be offered next year. Mrs. Leo Achtermann, who represents Monroe County on the committee, pointed out that perhaps it may be awarded to the daughter of a Monroe County veteran.

Past Presidents of the Council pay 50-cent dues a year to build up the fund.

The Wyckoff Shopper

In my conversation with Evelyn Zino, representative of Charles of the Ritz, I learned so much about cosmetics it is impossible to repeat everything. However, it was amazing to me that the Charles of the Ritz line is such an extensive one, and Miss Zino's advice about makeup application was sound and, in some cases, surprising.

For instance, she told me that one's tinted makeup base, which she considers essential for a lovely, long-lasting, blemish-concealing finish, should be used over the entire face, including the lips. This serves to blot out any natural color the lips may have, so that the lipstick shade prevails. Another tip is to make up half the face at a time, spreading the makeup base upward and outward, and downward over the nose. If this is done correctly, there is never a line of demarcation at the neckline. Powder, of course, corresponds with the tint, but should be about one shade lighter.

Charles of the Ritz mascara comes in four basic shades: light brown, dark brown, charcoal and black. For very round eyes, the mascara should be applied outward from the center; for deep set eyes with turned up corners it should be applied upward.

Miss Zino has two rules that are important beyond question: every woman over 18 should use a cleaner or skin freshener, and every woman who wears makeup needs a powder base. If she is using the correct base and the correct powder, her makeup should stay intact from morning until midnight, except for lipstick which may need retouching after dining. Eye makeup should be light for day ... but it is, Miss Zino believes, a definite necessity if a woman wishes to look her best.

The Sun Bronze look is the Charles of the Ritz look for Spring and Summer, and she placed upon my desk three beautiful makeup combinations: one featured True Blue makeup with Sun Bronze Coral lipstick; a second was Avocado for the eyes, and Sun Bronze for the lips; the third, Emerald Green for the eyes at night, and Sun Bronze Gold for the lips. Each eye makeup consisted of a stick, which one applies first in a soft band just above the lash roots, and a palette of creamy color with an artist's brush. After applying the stick, one simply moistens the brush and paints another line of the cream blue over the top. When this is done, the color is permanently set ... and it's really fun to do. Like being a Picasso or Renoir in one's boudoir.

Evelyn suggests for the average woman a cleanser ... a moisturizer called Revanescence, in either liquid or cream ... the tinted makeup base, which may be Liquid Veil, Complexion Veil, Astringent Foundation or Skin Bloom ... a generous application of powder, followed by eye and lip makeup. When she uses rouge (dry for the oily skin, cream for the dry skin) she applies it between the moisturizer and the tint base. Never, she advises, apply powder over a surface rouge thinking to tone it down—it only deepens the color.

Another exciting fact about Charles of the Ritz face powder, is that when one darkens from Summer sun, or fades out in the Winter, whatever powder one has may be brought in and re-mixed to the proper tone. Also ... everything one uses is recorded on permanent file in the cosmetic department, and may be re-purchased at any time. That's an easy way too, I should think, for gift-bearing friends to buy one the correct cosmetics.

Now, you must excuse me. I'm out of space and out of time. Anyway, I must hurry away to get my palette. I think today my eyelids should be ... well, maybe blue. No ... why not avocado? Talk about SUNDAY PAINTERS, we gals can do it EVERY day.

Routes 12-90 Renumbered '191' By State Highways

RENUMBERING of Routes 12 and 90 to avoid confusion with the Interstate Highway System was announced yesterday by A. Victor Cesare, engineer for the Pennsylvania Dept. of Highways' District Five.

Effective Monday, the two routes will be known as Route 191. It will originate in Center Valley and continue through Bethlehem, Nazareth, Stockertown, Bangor, Stroudsburg and Paradise Valley.

Continuous Route
Cesare said a secondary reason for the change was to provide a continuous route and to eliminate multiple traffic route signing.

Under the change, Route 12 from Center Valley to Bartonsville will be eliminated as will Route 90 from Easton to the Monroe-Wayne County line.

Cesare emphasized that the action is merely a change in numbering. No new construction is presently contemplated.

With the change, Route 115 will be the only designated traffic route from Stockertown to Easton. There will be no traffic route designation from Bartonsville to Snyder'sville and from Sciota to Saylorsburg.

Brown's Lake Acreage Bought

RECENT purchase of the 610-acre Brown's Lake property has brought to more than 1,000 acres the Pocono Mountains territory owned by Amelio and Amelia Scott of Pen Argyl.

The property was purchased from Carl and Eva Brown for $210,000. Three years ago, Scott bought a 460-acre tract near Gouldsboro in Wayne County, containing two 25-acre lakes. It has not yet been opened to the public.

property. He said the business will continue to operate and the Brown family will stay on the property.

Wage Move In Cross-Fire

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's minimum wage measure moved to the Senate floor yesterday and promptly ran into a brisk cross-fire from Southern Democrats and conservative Republicans.

Administration leaders remained confident they have the votes to put over their proposal to boost the minimum wage from $1 to $1.25 an hour and extend coverage to about four million workers, mostly in the larger retail stores, service industries and construction.

But it seemed unlikely there would be a final vote until after extended debate and many efforts to narrow down the White House program.

Scott said he has no immediate plans to expand or renovate the

Lary Tosses 1-Hitter In Beating Chicago 7-0

DETROIT (AP) — Jim Landis' scratch single in the fifth inning ruined Frank Lary's bid for a no-hitter Monday as he pitched the Detroit Tigers to a 7-0 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

Landis' hit bounced off shortstop Chico Fernandez's glove and the official scorer promptly ruled it a hit. Fernandez was forced to go far to his right to make the play. If he had fielded it cleanly it appeared he might have caught Landis at first.

Lary, dazzling the White Sox with an assortment of curves, sliders and fast balls, retired the next 13 batters before walking pinch hitter Earl Torgeson in the ninth.

The Tigers supported Lary's pitching with a 15-hit attack and scored their seven runs in the first three innings off Frank Baumann and reliever Bob Shaw.

Lary, 30, struck out only five while walking two.

Derby Preps Draw Top Horse Field

By JOHN CHANDLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

The 8th Kentucky Derby will be held in Louisville in three weeks and 3-year-old horses eligible for that classic will be seen in the California Derby and the Chesapeake Stakes Saturday.

Six of the seven entered for the $50,000-added California Derby at Golden Gate Fields will be attempting to justify a crack at the big one in Louisville May 6. The probable favorite for the West Coast race is Canadian-owned Flatterfly from the Alberta Ranches, Ltd.

Twelve were entered for the $25,000-added Chesapeake at Laurel, Md., but only Alfred Vanderbilt's Ring Around and Ben Weiner's Orleans Dog were nominated for the Kentucky Derby.

Final Major Tests

The California Derby and Chesapeake both are run at 1 1/4 miles and are the final major derby tests in their respective areas.

In addition, four derby candidates headed by the King Ranch's Bal Musette and Ogden Phipps' Hitting Away will appear in the Walnut Ridge Purse, secondary attraction at Aqueduct. The main event at Aqueduct is the $25,000-added Excelsior Handicap, with the Calumet Farm entry of Pied D'Ore and On-and-On, the probable favorite.

Along with Flatterfly, other Kentucky Derby eligibles entered in the California Derby are the Kerr Stable pair of Gay Landing and Mr. Consistency, Crosby and Lovelady's Mighty Mine, W. G. Gilmore's Indian Ali and C. V. Whitney's Songman.

Eleven 3-year-old fillies were entered for the $20,000-added Ashland Stakes at Keeneland, with Calumet Farm's Plum Cake favored under 118 pounds. Top weight in the 6-furlong Ashland is Charlton Clay's Rose Bower, 121.

Last Ditch Blow Gives Chicubs Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Sammy Taylor, with a three-two count and two out in the ninth, slammed a two-run homer to give the Chicago Cubs a thrilling 3-2 home opener victory Friday over the Milwaukee Braves.

Taylor's blow gave the managerless Cubs their first victory of the season and it came after Milwaukee apparently had sewed up a 2-1 triumph on solo homers by Frank Bolling and Hank Aaron.

Pinch-Hiters

The Taylor heroics came after he entered the game as a pinch-hitter in the seventh and proceeded to throw out three frisky Braves on the bases.

Taylor's decisive blow was a gift of Milwaukee starter Bob Buhl who had gone all the way. Al Heist had singled before Taylor's homer.

The victory went to Don Elston, who relieved starter Bob Anderson at the start of the eighth.

Liston Says He'll Quit

Unless Barone Steps Out

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sonny Liston, the No. 1 challenger for Floyd Patterson's heavyweight title, Friday threatened to quit the ring unless Joseph (Pepe) Barone steps out as his manager.

"I'm asking Pep to give up his contract with me so I can get a title fight," Liston said.

Patterson several times has said he won't defend against Liston until the Philadelphia heavyweight divorces himself from some of the people the champion claims have a financial interest in Liston.

A U.S. Senate subcommittee last winter said Frank (Blinky) Palermo and Frankie Carbo, were undercover managers of Liston and described Barone as a front man for them.

Sonny Liston

No Sale

Liston, winner of 34 of 35 fights, says he won't allow Barone of them.

Barone previously has received numerous offers for the Liston contract, and answered them all with, "It's not for sale."

Liston insists that if Barone refuses to give up the contract, reportedly worth $125,000, he'll quit fighting.

Liston intimates he has a number of prospective new managers in mind, but declines to name or express a preference for any of them.

Stars Reunited

MICKEY Rooney rejoins Jackie Cooper as an actor for the first time in 25 years when he plays a tipsy, saxophone-playing sailor in "Shore Patrol Revisited" on "Hennessey" Monday, May 8 (10:30 P.M. EDT) on the CBS Television Network. The pair's last professional appearance together was in the 1936 motion picture, "The Devil Is a Sissy," when both were child stars.

DEFEAT WITH HONOR — The last general staff meeting of the Army of the Confederacy, on April 9, 1865, is depicted in this scene from "Gentlemen's Decision," a dramatization of Gen. Robert E. Lee's surrender at Appomattox, on NBC-TV Network's "Our American Heritage" series Saturday, April 22. Shown (from left) are star Dean Jagger as Lee, Jay Barney as Gen. James Longstreet, Mark O'Daniels as Gen. E. Porter Alexander and Philip Bosco as Gen. John B. Gordon.

RALPH M. MEYER of Delaware Water Gap will be among the 125 antique dealers participating in the New York Antiques Show starting Monday and lasting until next Saturday.

The fair, being held in New York City's 71st Infantry Armory, Park Avenue at 34th St., will be open from 1 to 11 p.m. daily except Saturday, when it will close at 6 p.m.

Exhibits from all over the country will be on display and for sale. These will include antique furniture, jewelry, glassware, silver, china, paintings and very much more.

At Peel's trial, State Atty. Phil O'Connell said Holzapfel signed his own death warrant by taking the witness stand.

However, since the jury's mercy recommendation gave Peel an automatic sentence of life imprisonment, there has been speculation that Holzapfel also may be spared the death penalty.

Holzapfel, a smooth-talking hoodlum who once starred as a debater at Oklahoma City University, testified that he was a 50-50 partner in protection and gambling rackets operated by Peel when he was city judge.
